*This OB is a combining of several fragmented detachments to show the total strength of the units assigned, not the geographical distribution of a plethora of detachments. However, the source document, in a few instances, did not list the number of officers who were most obviously present, so when the various detachments were combined no increase could be made to the number of officers assigned. As a result a "+" was added after the number of officers who were "known" to have been there to indicate that there were most definatley more officers than indicated.
